Blueprint For Living

By Art K. Tect

. . . Through The Year

At long last the hopes and dreams for a new Emmerich Manual Training High School are being fulfilled. On August 1, 1951, school board members, faculty, pupils, and friends witnessed the ground-breaking for the new school. Now the foundation has been laid, the structure is rising, and soon it will stand as a symbol of the rebirth of the fine traditions and ideals which have long characterized Emmerich Manual Training High School. As the architect's blueprints of the New Manual became realities at Pleasant Run Parkway and Madison Avenue, so have the blueprints of Manualites' lives taken form in the school life of this year.

Living . . .

Emmerich Manual Training High School opened its doors in September to the largest group of Tribesmen enrolled in recent years. Eleven new teachers and nearly 200 eighth graders trooped into the Wigwam to begin a year of fun and work.

Placing the first "brick" in the "wall" of many activities at Manual this year, the Dads Club sponsored a bean supper where Carolyn Smith and Jack Miller were chosen Dotty and Dan Bean.

Soon after Tribesmen were settled again in their Wigwam, Chief Burton W. Gorman accepted a teaching position and fellowship at George Peabody College. The new chieftain, Mr. C. Edgar Stahl, was welcomed by the squaws and braves of the Manual

At the Dads Club Bean Supper Jack Miller and Carolyn Smith (top picture) won the titles "Dan" and "Dotty" and appropriate trophies because their roll room, 208, had the largest representation. David Englert shows how he ate the most beans as Mr. William Knapp, Dads Club, and Mrs. Edna Gullett, sponsor of 208, look on.

Surrounded by flowers sent to congratulate him on his appointment, Mr. C. Edgar Stahl is shown in the bottom picture just after he became the new principal of Manual in October.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Edgar Stahl (top, right) were honored at a tea during the P-TA Open House observing Education Week in November.

community late in September. Honoring Mr. Stahl and his wife, members of the P-TA gave a reception for the new principal as part of their Education Week Open House, which featured demonstrations of typical activities in each department.

For many Teepee Towners Oct. 25 and 26 were days of sleep and no work, but for Redskins in the Glee Club, Choir, or publications work they were days of work and no sleep. Glee Club and Choir members sang at Indiana State Teachers Association convention meetings, while those interested in journalism journeyed to Franklin College in the school bus to attend the annual convention of the Indiana High School Press Association.

Top scholars for the fall semester were honored at an all-school assembly after the second semester began. Seated are Mary Fisher, Rose Kelsey, Elaine Holland, Laura Snoddy, and Patty Silvers. In the second row are Patricia McVey, Joan Crow, Sandra Snider, Jean Sommer, Rosalyn Roembke, Carolyn Link, and Mary Carr. In the third row are Juanita Carver, Kathleen Callon, James Stainbrook, Esther Scharfe, Don Lindemann, Wayne Brehob, Alvadeen Rollins, and Yvonne Edmonds.

Planning for their Ivy Day program kept the senior class busy during the month of November. The Class of '52 celebrated this traditional day with the planting of the ivy, a program in the auditorium, and a dance in the cafeteria. Combined choruses of the music department sang at a special Thanksgiving convocation before the school's two-day vacation.

Socks and toes of dancing Teepee Towners received plenty of wear and tear at the 1951 Ivian Sock Hop, shoeless shindig highlighted by advance release of underclass pictures.

Director Douglas Conrod shouted his orders and the cameras rolled on Nov. 29 and 30 as the 1951 vaudeville got underway with an imaginary movie lot as the setting.

Square dancers celebrating at Manual's fifty-seventh birthday party are Lynn Robbins, Suann Luessow, John Gutzwiller, Phyllis Cox, Ray Cory, and Mary Ruth Heuser.

Singing native and foreign Christmas music and depicting Christmas customs of Germany, Czechoslovakia, Poland, and France, Manualites presented their annual Christmas program on a stage transformed into a cathedral.

Redskins, past and present, helped Dame Manual observe her fifty-seventh birthday with a square dance, an auditorium program, and an alumni smorgasboard. Sponsored by the Student Affairs Board, the in-school Valentine-birthday dance featured Max Forsyth, professional square dance caller. To climax the student observance of the occasion, an auditorium program, which included a talk by Mr. Elbert Glass '09, and music by the Senior Choir, was held on Feb. 15.

Sitting out a dance at the Cherry Tree Hop, Suann Luessow, Lou Ellen Crow, and Leta Lawrence talk with Miss Freda Hart, Glee Club sponsor. Rochelle Thixton, right, watches the dancers.

The all-school Careers Day in April required detailed planning. In conference here are Pat Turley; Mr. Leslie Maxwell, acting vice principal; Mr. C. Edgar Stahl, principal; Miss Helen Haynes, placement director; and Betty Willoughby.

To help George Washington celebrate his 220th birthday, Glee Club girls sponsored their annual Cherry Tree Hop on Feb. 22. Remembering that it was Leap Year, the singers suggested that Manual femmes choose their escorts for the dance.

During the second semester, Manualites became accustomed to seeing new faces in the vice principal's and dean of girls' offices. Mr. Leslie Maxwell, director of counseling, was appointed acting vice principal after Mr. Manley Lewis requested a leave of absence for the remainder of the semester. Mrs. Vivian Siener acquired the duties of acting dean of girls.

Some 30 senior musicians with six semesters of service in a performing group received felt lyres during a music department honors program.

With Ted Maier, Sandra Ketchum, and Ramon Strege as the principal characters, the 1951 Senior Class presented their play, "A Murder Has Been Arranged," on March 21.

To assist Manualites in choosing a vocation, the fourth annual Careers Day was held on April 18. Guest speaker for the general assembly program was Dr. A. C. Brooks, who spoke on "Factors in Choosing an Occupation." Following the assembly, students attended vocational groups in which they were interested.

As spring vacation approached and the Ivian went to press, Teepee Towners looked forward to following Careers Day with the annual Spring Fiesta, which featured for students the election of the Cactus Caballero and Mexicale Maid, and to another big May Day-Field Day celebration.

Elected Cactus Caballero and Mexicale Maid at the 1951 Spring Fiesta, Dallas Gritton and Lura Bennett received portable radios. Mrs. Vivian Siener (top, right) was appointed acting dean of girls at the beginning of the spring semester.

Surrounded by her court, Colleen Freeland, 1951 May Queen, reigned at a Field Day featuring an all-school parade to Delavan Smith Athletic Field and various athletic contests.

Blueprint For

. . . In Classes

As a contractor needs to understand the blueprints of a building before he can start his construction work, so the students of Manual—the architects and builders of tomorrow—need thorough training before they can begin laying the foundation for intelligent citizenship. Through the selection of carefully chosen courses, Tepee Towners acquire not only the qualities of a good leader and the fundamentals of basic training, but they also are becoming aware of the many social, political, and economic problems and are learning how to solve them.

Living . . .

Department heads gathered with Principal C. Edgar Stahl are Mr. A. Ross Williams, social studies; Mrs. Edith Binkley, music; Miss Josephine Boyd, home economics; Mr. Oran Davis, fine arts; Mr. Stahl; Mr. James Brayton, science and mathematics; Mrs. Ada M. Bing, English; Mr. Harry Thomas, physical education; Mr. Guy W. Trickey, practical arts; and Miss F. Cleo Frazier, business education.

Heads of departments blueprint the activities of such typical student-teacher combinations as Kenneth Hughes (below) and his mechanical drawing instructor, Mr. A. L. Weigler.

Working problems was a chief activity in Miss Eva Thornton's trigonometry class. Shown here are Leon Cohen, Sylvia Specker, Shirley Gard, Miss Thornton, and Harry Shaner.

Endeavoring to help students learn to speak, read, and write effectively, English and foreign language classes offer a variety of courses. Speech students try their hand at radio techniques in such activities as recording the "Junior Town Meeting" radio programs, while those with a flair for writing keep an eye on essay contest announcements. New teachers in the fall semester were Miss Lucille Cassell, Mr. Richard Snyder, and Mrs. Ione Lloyd, who rejoined the staff after a year's absence.

Realizing that one of the basic requirements for success in the business world is a firm foundation in mathematics, teachers in this department help Tepee Towners make the blueprints for their future by offering a four-year course which includes basic and advanced algebra, plane and solid geometry, and trigonometry. This wide range of courses helps Manualities learn to reason logically and develop initiative and ingenuity. A newcomer among the mathematics teachers this year was Miss Jennie Croas, a Manual alumna.

Those enrolled in science courses realize the importance of their subjects in their everyday living and in the world of tomorrow. Classes in biology and physiology help promote interest and understanding of the functions of plants and animals, while physics and community science train students in the field of physical forces. One of the values of the science department's work is the training given graduates who go on to more specialized college work. Mrs. Bonnie Ball was a new science teacher this year.

By helping Manualities realize that the world of today demands an understanding of yesteryear, the history department is, in a sense, blueprinting the lives of tomorrow's citizens. In addition to offering a complete and varied curriculum, this department also sponsors an extemporaneous speaking contest each semester. History teachers also helped prepare Manual's current events "Quiz 'Em" team which took its turn in competing with other local schools in a weekly Sunday afternoon radio feature.

Participants in the current events contest, "Quiz 'Em on the Air," were (left of microphone) William Thoele, Charles Monroe, George Ashcraft, and Sylvia Specker. Quiz master was Tom Carnegie (at microphone) when Manual defeated Technical last November.

Gaining skill in machine calculation. Mary Chitwood works out a problem on the comptometer.

Members of Mrs. Thelma Morgan's boys' foods class don chefs' hats and learn how to prepare and serve food. In the foreground are Richard Bornstein, Robert Cunningham, Earl Riggin, John Lemen, Charles Monroe, John Duart, and Bob Andrews.

The click, click of typewriters and the tapping of comptometer keys are the symbol of a department busy training Manualities for future careers in offices. From the coin collections and hobby shows of junior business classes to complicated multigraph projects in office training, business education departments activities are planned to produce intelligent citizens and competent wage earners. Mr. L. B. Maxwell, business education instructor, served as acting vice principal after Mr. Manley Lewis requested a leave of absence early in the spring.

While most foods classes concern themselves only with the selection, preparation, and serving of food, members of Mrs. Thelma Morgan's Foods I and Boys' Foods classes redecorated their home economics kitchen. Clad in blue jeans and old shirts, they painted woodwork, waxed cabinets, and even hung wall paper. Other department activities included a fashion festival, in which Manualites modeled teen toggery, and numerous teas and luncheons at which students served. Mrs. Shirley Wible and Mrs. Pauline Stark joined the home economics faculty this year.

Preparing themselves for a vocation or for the task of handy man around the home, those boys enrolled in practical arts classes learn valuable techniques under careful supervision of eight instructors. Equipment for the school, toys for underprivileged children, and furniture for their homes kept some busy as others learned radio theory and basic fundamentals of automobile and electric shop work. Mr. Russell Sands transferred from Technical to the Manual practical arts department last fall, and Mr. Edward Maybury joined the faculty in January.

Although painting and sketching constitute a large part of the regular art class work, an opportunity also is given to those wishing to do something different. A papier-mache Indian mascot for the basketball team was created this year by arts and crafts class students. Posters for school activities, senior class arm bands, and Ivian layouts were among art production class projects which put theory to work for the good of the school.

Gerald Cannon, student in the practical arts department, puts the finishing touches on a what-not.

Sketching outdoors, students in Mr. Robert Crawford's art class are Carl Huffman, Carol Stuck, Mary Weddle, Viola Williams, Carol Brown, and Mary Roberts.

Learning the basic principles of music and the various techniques of harmonizing, harmony class members are (seated) Beverly Willson, Eugene Nichols, William Breedlove, Ellen Jackson, and Gerald Burris. Standing are Robert Lyon, Don Eggert, and Mrs. Edith Binkley.

ROTC members line up for inspection by Sgt. Don Winter, assisted by Cadet Capt. Gene Spencer and Honorary Capt. Janet Mahan. Other ROTC girl sponsors were Shirley Popplewell, Bettyjean Kestler, and Pat Clemons.

A single glance at the number of students enrolled in the various music classes proves that Manualites are a talented group. Whether a pupil's interest is in vocal or instrumental music—in producing or simply enjoying it—this department has a course to interest him. Not only does the music department provide entertainment for various school assemblies throughout the year, but it also schedules many appearances for church and business organizations in the community.

From the parade grounds to the classroom, members of the ROTC are taught not only military techniques but also discipline, courtesy, and teamwork. The basis for intelligent citizenship is laid by instruction in military policy, first aid, map reading, and marksmanship. By obtaining outstanding records in federal inspection and by participating in various parades, Manual's ROTC has brought credit and recognition to the entire school.

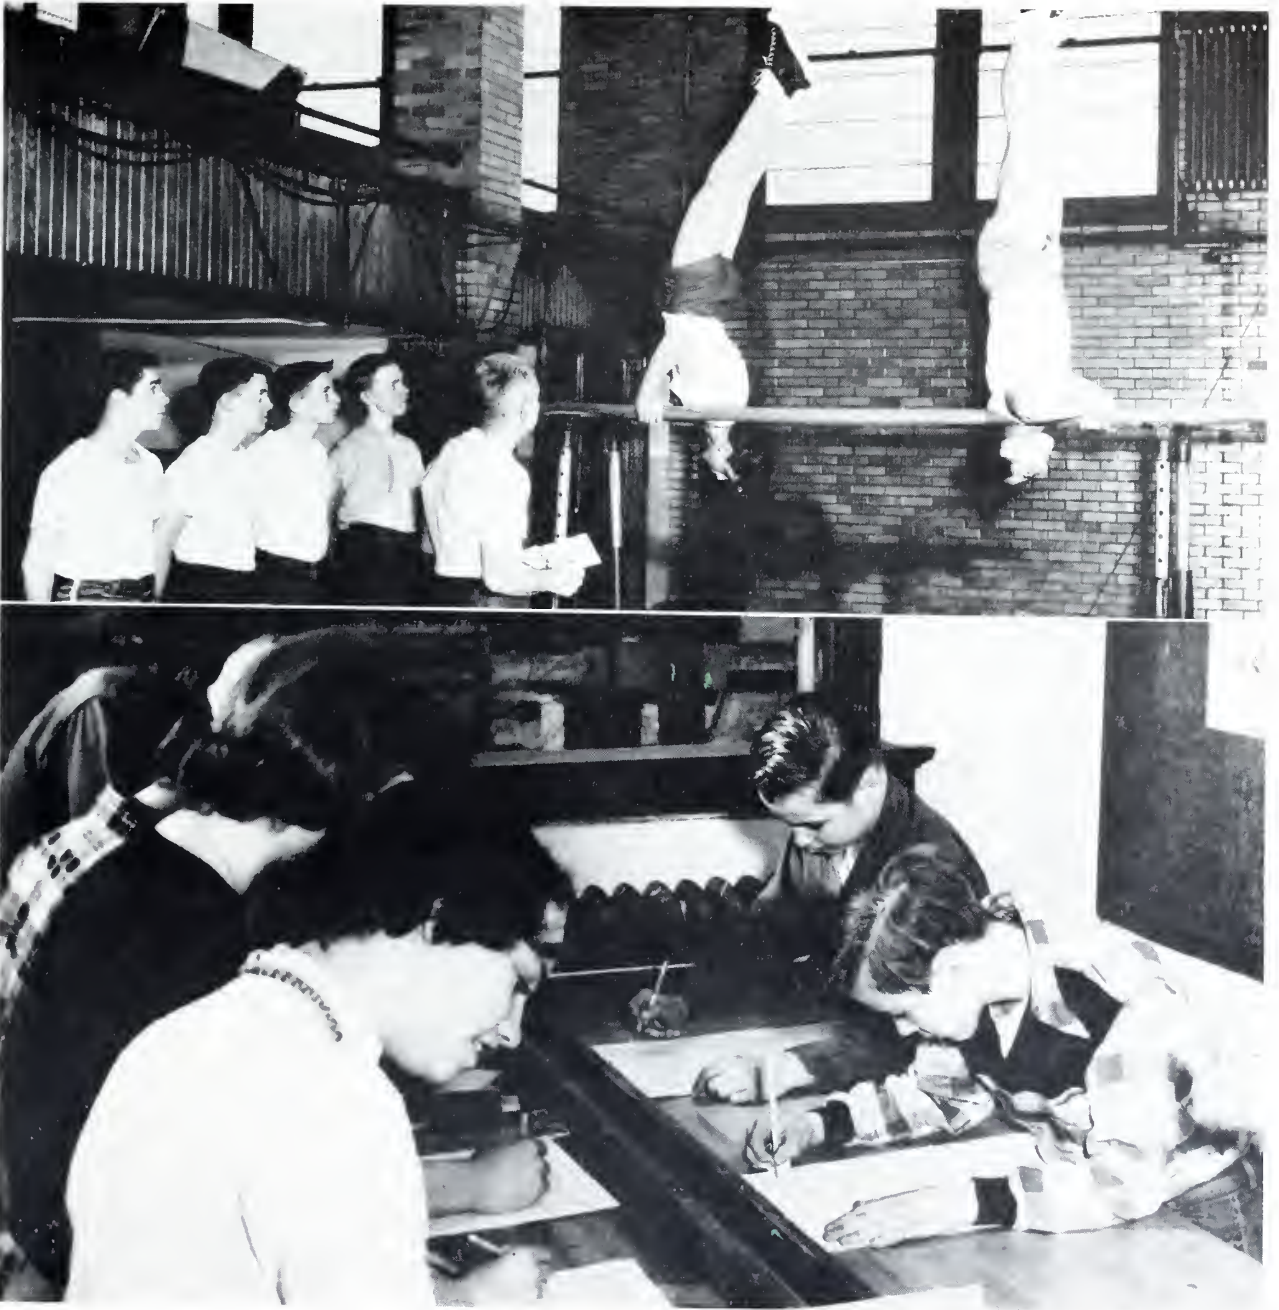

Realizing the importance of developing desirable standards of social and moral conduct, the physical education department offers both boys and girls an opportunity to participate in organized activities such as basketball, volleyball, tumbling, and handball. Freshman boys compete in a semi-annual Decathlon. The ten boys who earn the most points out of a possible 1,000 win bronze Frenzel medals. Girls also learn various types of dancing.

Many were the trials and tribulations of the eighth graders as they took over the east wing of the first floor at the beginning of the fall semester. These new papooses made a name for themselves by winning the city championship in football. As the Ivian went to press, they were well on their way to capturing a similar honor in basketball. New teachers in this department are Mr. William Glickert, Mr. John Patten, Mr. Amos Smith, Mrs. Clarice Young, Mrs. Mary Magee, Mr. Don Mason, and Miss Theta Byrnett.

Bob Sharrer, Bob Reed, Rolland Stucky, and Ted Hamilton watch as Mr. Alvin Romeiser, boys' physical education instructor, judges Bob Bruhn and Richard Harrison for the annual Decathlon.

Eighth grade art students learning the fundamentals of lettering are Elmarie Hall, Clyde Duncan, and Billy Evans.

Blueprint For

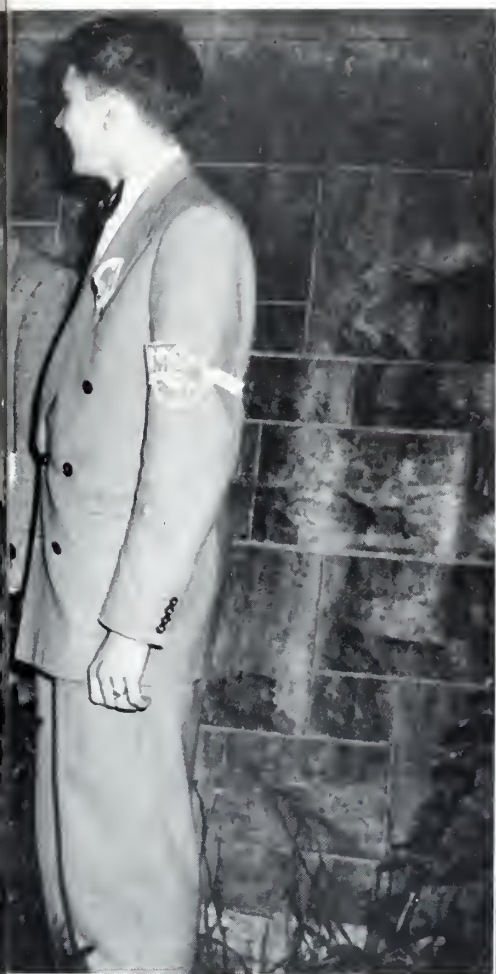

With Manual Friends . . .

One thing not usually associated with blueprints had to go on those drawings of Art K. Tect's. The plans of life at Manual in 1951-52 had to have people—people by the hundreds! From eighth graders to Dads and from department assistants to department heads, they took part, after classes were over, in group activities such as Ivy Day and all-school functions such as the school's birthday square dance.

Living . . .

Art. K. helps with the snipping as student assembly members Barbara Schomberg, Karl Walker, and Suann Luessow help Miss Jennie Croas plan the birthday square dance. Miss Croas was Student Affairs Board sponsor during the second semester.

Reigning over the Cherry Tree Hop, sponsored annually by the Girls Glee Club, Jane Ray was elected "Martha" and Jon Livingston, "George." Barbara Lawrence and James Weber (standing) were two of the other candidates for the honor.

Seniors

Guided by the motto "Not Finished; Just Begun," seniors led the school through the bustle of classes and activities that was to end their four years at Manual.

The class opened the year with the Ivian sales campaign which went over a thousand sales. The campaign was closed by the Ivian Sock Hop, at which Dick Nyers and Barbara Nibarger were chosen Mr. and Miss Ivian. Girls trained by Barbara Willoughby, '51 Manual graduate, provided the floor show.

A big day for the class was Ivy Day, which was highlighted by the traditional Ivy planting ceremony by class president Jack Kidwell.

Following the planting, Kidwell presented the silver trowel to the class of '53, represented by President Harry Shaner.

Officers chosen for the first semester were (bottom) Rose Kelsey, secretary; Jack Kidwell, president; and Dick Nyers, vice-president.

When Christmas was approaching, seniors met the occasion with a Christmas party at which senior officers judged cookies submitted by femmes from the class.

Charles Raker, head treasurer, was assisted by Norman Lockman, Mary Carr, and Shirley Popplewell. During the second semester when Shirley became secretary her office was filled by Joe Vest, and Gladys Ann Caley took Norman's position when he was graduated in January.

Class Day, May 19, gave fourth year men a chance to strut their stuff and provided plenty of fun and fellowship to add to the memories of those who would soon leave the ivy covered walls.

Senior candidates for Fiesta Mexicalle Maid and Cactus Cabellero were Shirley Harris, Mary Ellen Ford, Harlis Dyson, and Bill Green.

Topping their class on the honor roll were Yvonne Edmonds, Mary Fischer, Alvadeen Rollins, and Harriett Schwartz.

Chosen Mr. and Miss Ivian at the Ivian Sock Hop which climaxed the yearbook sales campaign were Barbara Nibarger and Dick Nyers.

The only change in senior officers for the spring semester was the election of Shirley Popplewell (bottom left) as secretary.

Representing Manual in a group of city and county high school students who visited the United Nations in New York during October, Paul Pattison (bottom right) awaited departure of a Trans-World Airlines plane which was to carry him to his destination.

The Senior Prom, a long-to-be remembered event in the life of all members of the class of '52, was held at the Indiana Roof on June 2. Buddy Weber's orchestra was chosen to play for the dance.

First place in the state essay contest on the subject "Employ the Handicapped for National Security," went to Phil Stenger.

The class banner, designed by Larry Burkhart, was displayed on Senior Class Day and at commencement. Larry also was the originator of Art K. Tect, an important part of this publication.

Senior thespians chose a spooky thriller, "A Murder Has Been Arranged," by Emyln Williams, for their class play, presented March 21.

Directed by Mr. Douglas Conrod, the play centered around the inheritance of a fortune of two million pounds. Unless he died before the 11 p. m. deadline, Sir Charles Jasper, played by Ted Maier, was to receive the money. Otherwise the only other living near relative, Maurice Mullins, played by Raymon Strege, would get the windfall. Mullins, of course, arranged Sir Charles' murder, but the situation didn't have just the ending he had planned.

Participants in the Senior Class cake walk are Elizabeth Fischer, Gladys Ann Caley, and Kenneth Laurison.

Other cast members were Sandra Ketchum, who played the wife of Sir Charles, Bessie Miller, Betty Settles, Versa Cecil, Jim Weber, Pat Birl, and Jon Livingston.

June Hilgemeier was student director; Charles Monroe, production manager; Pat Birl and Sylvia Specker, prompters; Jane Goodin, business manager; Yvonne Edmonds and Paul Pattison, house managers; and Betty McKeown, properties chairman.

While learning that organization produces results, juniors contributed much to school life.

Leading class activities, Mr. Oral Bridgford completed his second year as class sponsor. First semester officers were Harry Shaner, president; Joan Crow, vice-president; Ted Ransdell, secretary; and Dave Brinker, treasurer. New officers in January were John Tames, secretary, and Charles Taylor, treasurer.

Having won second prize for her essay on "What the Bill of Rights Means to Me," Dolores Tracy (top right) received twenty-five dollars.

Harry Shaner and Joan Crow (bottom) are the junior officers who remained in office throughout the year.

Factors which distinguished the life of the juniors from other underclassmen were the many activities and honors which they shared during the year as an organized class.

Chief first semester class activities included decorating the Christmas tree for the main hall and a Christmas dance.

Among honors bestowed on junior class members during the year were awards presented to Joe Cloyd, who received a gold key, and to Jim Beatty, who placed, in the Scholastic Art Exhibit. Third year students chosen as candidates for the Fiesta Cactus Caballero and Mexicale Maid election were Joan Crow, Janet Mahan, Harry Shaner, and Forrest Williams.

A big day for the class was May 6, Junior Recognition Day. Juniors attended an auditorium program followed by a dance in the school cafeteria.

Beverly Willson (right) displays an attitude of interest, which is essential in all aspects of school life, as she admires the United Nations flag.

The Masoma Alumnae Award for the outstanding freshman girl went to Elaine Holland for the top scholastic record among freshman girls who entered in September.

Getting plenty of practice punching the cash register, Sandra Fox (left) spent much of her time assisting Mrs. Beatrice Morrell in the bookstore.

David Goldman (below), who represented Manual in a panel discussion at Crispus Attucks during Brotherhood Week, pauses during a perplexing moment in his study.

Eighth Grade

Those people who exclaim annually, "My! The freshmen are smaller every year!" should have visited Manual's first floor east corridor this year. There Manual's first crop of eighth graders held forth.

Those small but lively "junior papooses" indicated their enthusiasm and ability to fit into life at Manual early in the school year when they sang at the Thanksgiving program under the direction of Mrs. Mary Magee, their music teacher.

They turned out a city championship football team and a near-championship basketball team, both of which brought joy to the hearts of many Manualities.

Despite an already heavy roll call schedule which included physical education classes, junior papooses organized two fall semester clubs.

Officers of the Hobby Club, which was sponsored by Mrs. Clarice Young, were Margaret Ragsdale, president; Peggy Sanford, vice-president; Carolyn Bishop, secretary-treasurer, and Jean Shoots, program chairman.

Newton club officers were Norma Prather, president; Eloise Query, vice-president; and Sonja Resenbeck, secretary-treasurer.

Teachers not pictured are Mr. William Breedlove, music; Miss Theta Byrkett, eighth grade; Mr. Donald R. Hully, practical arts; Mr. Don Mason, eighth grade; Mr. Edward Maybury, practical arts; Mrs. Mary Magee, eighth grade; Mr. J. C. Mather, practical arts; Mrs. Pauline Stark, home economics; Mr. A. L. Weigler, practical arts; and Mr. M. Dale Williams, business education.

Close co-workers with the faculty were office staff members. Pictured to the right of home economics teacher Mrs. Rovene Yeager is Mrs. DeLoris Arterburn, stenographer, who resigned just before spring vacation to move to California. In the next row are Miss Charlotte Hafer, bookkeeper; Mrs. Violet Hauser, registrar; Mrs. Mary J. Spiegel, secretary; and Miss Marjorie Vehling, attendance clerk. Mrs. Beatrice Morrell, shown below Miss Vehling, is bookstore manager.

Manual's social service office grew to include headquarters for a psychologist and several additional workers this year. Those particularly concerned with Manual work are (seated) Miss Thelma Taylor and Miss Mildred Harvey, director, and (standing) Miss Frances Eickhoff and stenographer Mary Banson.

Working upstairs and down with broom and dustcloth, Manual's staff of custodians had a never-ending cleaning chore. Mr. Emery Hart is shown here as he dusts a stairway hand rail.

Administrators' "blueprints for the year" included frequent conferences over a huge set of detailed plans for the new building. Here vice principals Noble Poole and Manley Lewis and Principal C. Edgar Stahl discuss the drawings.

Mrs. Ruth McCoomer is one of the cafeteria workers whose culinary efforts invite that mad rush to the lunchroom each day. Miss Edith Davis heads the cafeteria staff.

Blueprint For

. . . In Activities

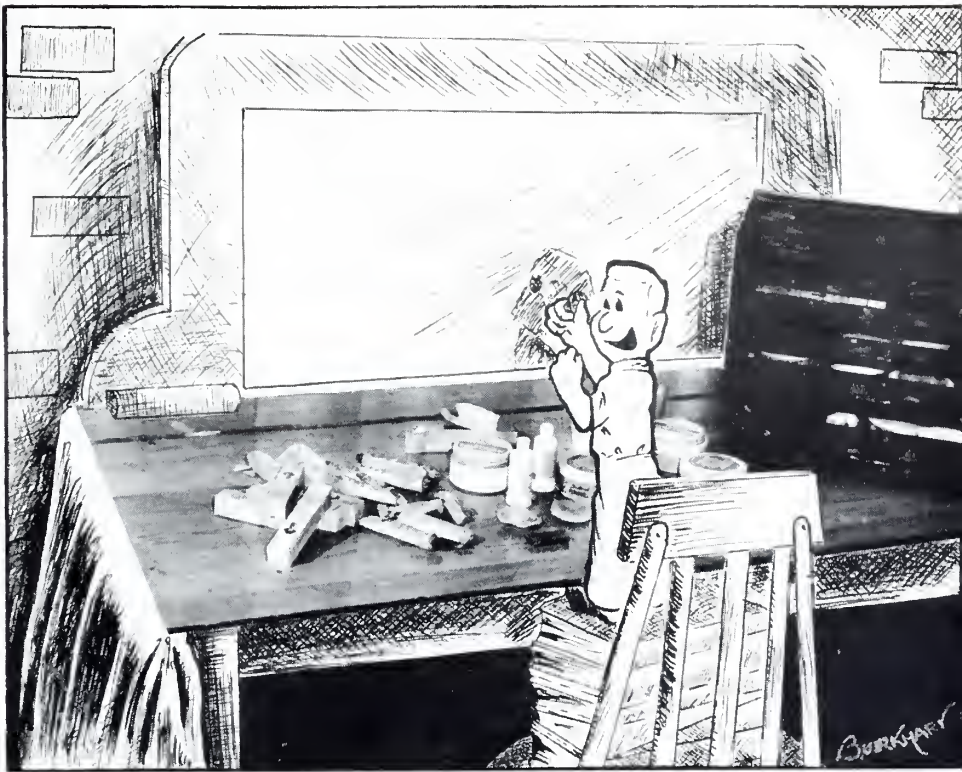

Variety is the spice of life, and some recreation and diversion are included in our blueprint for living to keep minds and bodies alert and healthy. With this thought Tepee Towners take part in and enjoy the various activities around the big Wigwam. All activities, whether educational or entertaining, are important in helping to stimulate and develop the students who participate. Hours of work and practice and fun often go into a single performance or project. In many ways Manual clubs, class groups, and performers have benefited both the school and themselves by their participation in various extracurricular activities.

Living . . .

Doing an important chore for the annual vaudeville. Nancy Bonewits, Pat Borrer, and Nancy Downing helped with makeup.

THE LIBRARY CLUB, organized for Tepee Towners who assist in the library, helps create an interest in the field of library science. Busily mounting book covers (top left) on the bulletin board for sponsor Miss Helen Negley are assistants Shirley Towles, Barbara Kelso, and Barbara Henn.

FORUM CLUB members realized that intelligent debate on world affairs must be based on fact. Inquisitive members seeking information for their discussions are Dolores Tracy, Harry Shaner, Thomas Lakes, and Don Eggert. Under the sponsorship of Mr. A. R. Williams, the club elected for second semester officers Barbara Lockhart, president; Kathleen Callon, vice-president; and Theresa Cron, secretary-treasurer.

BATON twirlers, caught in the act of practicing a new routine to be used at football games, are Beverly Wheatley, Norma Meyer, Jane Wayner, Rosalyn Roembke, Delores Tetric, and Gayle Engleman. Another activity of this club, which is sponsored by Mr. E. L. Brittan, is teaching beginners the art of twirling. Officers the second semester were Gayle Engleman, president; Jane Wayner, vice-president; Sandra Banks, secretary; and Jackie Ball, treasurer.

BUSINESS GIRLS add to their experiences and training in the field of business. They invited a guest speaker from Eli Lilly and Company to one of their meetings. Discussing points of the talk with sponsor Miss Wilhelmina Schaufler are Nancy Chamness, Novice Douglas, and Barbara Jackson. Organized only in the fall semester, members chose Pat Jarrett, president; Mary Lou Hagen, vice-president; Shirley Harris, secretary; and Kathleen Callon, treasurer.

PROJECTION CLUB enthusiasts were identified during their initiation by bow ties made of strips of film. They served the school by showing movies to various classes. Threading film into a projector are Donna Stocker, Richard Billiard, president; David Link, secretary-treasurer; and Don Westrick, vice-president.

SENIOR DANCE . . . "That's right. Now swing her around," says sponsor Mr. Douglas Conrod as members of the Senior Dance Club (bottom) learn new dance routines. Getting set for the senior prom are Alyce Buescher, Jon Livingston, Gladys Ann Caley, and Ross Faires.

RED CROSS members receiving instruction from club sponsor Mrs. Coral T. Black before they begin distribution of membership drive posters in the downtown area are Evelyn Coonfield, Ann Solomon, Mary Lou Hagen, and Mary Kattau. Club members also packed 137 boxes which were sent overseas.

Second semester officers were Mary Lou Hagen, president; Carol Ayers, vice-president; Beverly Willson, secretary, and Rosemary Van Jelgerhuis, treasurer.

BOOSTER CUBS were apprentice staff members who toiled at learning to write for publication and at such odd jobs as sorting underclass Ivian pictures, reading galley proofs, pasting up dummy pages—and bringing cokes to staff members thirsty for something besides news. Here eighth grader Vernajayne Metz and freshmen Sondra Cooley and Roger Smith work on laying out a page of underclassmen for the Ivian. Mrs. Ione Lloyd sponsored the club.

COMMUNICATIVE ARTS members were busy representing Manual on two local radio programs, "High School Hour," and "Junior Town Meeting." Organized to help develop a better understanding of the principles of speech-making, this club, led by Mr. Douglas Conrod, also sent participants to the Indiana Forensic Society contest, which included poetry reading, radio announcing, and extemporaneous speaking. Club officers were Dallas Gritton, president, Diane Scott, vice-president, and Art Baker secretary. Here Dallas Gritton, Mr. Conrod, Kathryn Weiland, and Ronnie Mescall rehearse for one of their radio programs.

MASK AND WIG activities were highlighted by the participation of club members Freda James, Charles Ratliff, Morton Actor, and Mary Clark in the play "Sham" which was given in the city drama festival at Technical. Club members also served as makeup assistants for vaudeville and senior class play cast members. Officers assisting Mr. Douglas Conrod, sponsor, were Freda James, president; Webster Brewer, vice-president; Nancy Bonewits, secretary, Lorine Short, treasurer; and Pat Borrer, pledge mother. Here Mr. Conrod helps Freda James, Mike Graves, Pat Borrer, and Phil Snodgrass with their club activities.

POETRY students with a talent for developing rhyme and rhythm wrote and discussed poems and submitted original verse to sponsor Mrs. Ada M. Bing. Gazing at the names of the alumnae whose original poems have won them the Anna J. Griffith award in recent years are Mary Black, Shirley Sullivan, and Ann Sullivan.

Officers for the second semester were Ann Sullivan, president, and Mary Ward, secretary.

FUTURE HOMEMAKERS OF AMERICA found enjoyment in December when they entertained first grade students of School 6 with a Christmas party including toys, candy, and even Santa Claus. Here a frightened guest sits on Santa's lap as Wilma Privett looks on. Under the co-sponsorship of Mrs. Miriam Mendenhall and Mrs. Shirley Wible, club officers for the second semester were Beverly Alumbaugh, president; Marie Kingery, vice-president, Georgina Rutledge, recording secretary; Barbara Schomberg, attendance secretary; and Rita Flanary, treasurer.

MANUAL MOANERS, a group of Manual braves who organized for their own pleasure in singing, never lived up to their name. Blending their voices in a quartet, accompanied by their sponsor, Miss Freda Hart, are John Barger, Larry Hendricks, Robert Medsker, and Richard Harrison. Second semester officers included Bill Green, president; Don Smith, vice-president; Charles Raker, secretary-treasurer; and Dick Nyers, librarian.

Other clubs whose activities were a significant part of the school year are Non-Commissioned and Commissioned Officers clubs, co-sponsored by Sgts. Leo Chevalier and Don Winter; eighth grade Hobby Club, led by Mrs. Clarice Young; Block-M, sponsored by Mr. Noah Ellis; Cheerleader Club, under the leadership of Miss Helen Negley and Mr. Harry Thomas; and the Paddle Club, sponsored by Mr. John Moffat.

Booster

"The reporter is the backbone of the paper," scribes for The Booster, Manual's bi-weekly newspaper, heard frequently. Reporters not only wrote stories but took care of numerous other details of publications work. Joyce Gladson (top left) won the "Reporter of the Week" citation for especially meritorious writing. Shown with her are Mary Lou Hauser, exchange editor; Betty Coffman, bookkeeper and string editor; and Martha Bishop, who kept a scrapbook of Manual clippings from the daily and weekly papers.

Barbara Boeldt and Shirley Gard (sitting) conferred each week with Mrs. Ione Lloyd, director of publications, on stories and pictures to be sent to the city and neighborhood papers. Barbara also represented the staff at a "Publicity Confab," sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, professional organization for women in journalism, and Shirley took part in a panel discussion at a regional journalism institute at Broad Ripple High School.

Planning assignments for each issue of The Booster took much discussion and calendar checking by Bob Koepper, sports editor; Marilyn Andrews, Page 2 editor; Judy Rodman, second semester editor in chief; and Shirley Rouse, Page 3 editor. A highlight of the year was the trip to Franklin for the Indiana High School Press Association convention, where Miss Rodman served as student chairman of one session. Between deadlines staff members relaxed at a Christmas get-together and a pitch-in celebrating the Booster's fortieth birthday.

Each Booster editor had a "man Friday" whose job it was to assist the editors and learn how to do their work. These staff members were Barbara Lockhart, Esther Scharfe, Pat Tollan, and Barbara Black, shown to the left of Mrs. Lloyd, and Ronnie Mescall. As junior editors they received training which will smooth their paths as staff executives next year.

Manualites first heard about The Ivian last fall when bricks were being added daily to a brick wall in the cafeteria to show the progress of a sales campaign. Top salesmen during the campaign, climaxed by the Ivian Sock Hop, were seniors Yvonne Edmonds and Jess Studer, shown here with posters used during the drive.

Next reminder that the yearbook was underway came when the underclass photographer set up shop in Room 218 and “snapped” English class members. The hundreds of small, glossy pictures which arrived several weeks later provided hours of after-school and evening work for underclass editor Nancy Reid, art editor Phil Stenger, and volunteers from Booster Cub Club and Booster staff.

Art K. Tect, who personifies the blueprint theme of this year's book, is the brainchild of Larry Burkhart (left), who is shown here working with Miss Gladys Denney and Phil Stenger, art editor. Other members of Miss Denney's art production class who assisted with yearbook layout and mountings are, working to Phil's left, Esther Scharfe, Margaret Steele, and Dick DeHoney.

A darkroom crew supervised by Miss Theo B. Parr popped the flashbulbs and developed and printed most of the pictures for the 1952 Ivian. Staff members shown here are Freda James, Norma Prather, Ida Dillbone, Ann Solomon, Norma Edelen, and Marilyn Shimp. Joe Gagen also worked with the photography staff. In addition to doing the yearbook photography, the staff also took pictures of school functions for other groups and provided the prints for Booster and publicity pictures.

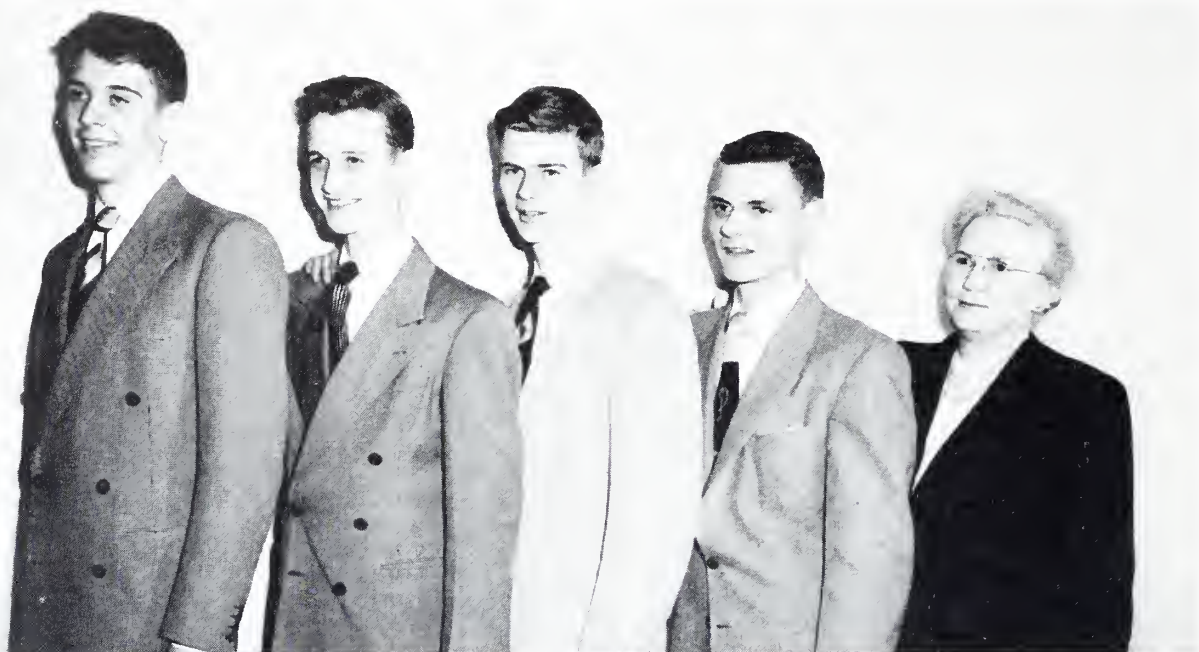

Led by a new in-school sponsor, Miss Garnett Foreman, the Roines, senior boys' honorary club, sold tickets for freshman basketball games, checked wraps at school functions, ushered at the vaudeville, sponsored a cleanup of the Merrill Street underpass, and contributed their services to many other school activities. Second semester officers were Phil Stenger, president; Jack Pierson, vice-president; Jack Kidwell, secretary; and Charles Raker, treasurer.

Remembering their motto, "We Serve," members of the senior girls' honorary club, the Masomas, helped in many ways around the Tepee during the past year. Assisting in the office, greeting incoming freshmen, collecting money for the Heart Fund, and serving at the Night School Open House were a few of the ways in which these girls donated their services. At graduation, the Masoma Alumnae Association presents a medal to the girl who has given the most service to the school.

Having won two consecutive honor ratings, Manual's ROTC unit drilled hard throughout the year in an effort to retain its high standing.

Honors bestowed on the unit during the year include a streamer in the 1951 Armed Forces Day parade and third place in the first inter-school rifle match which was held in March.

Members of the rifle team were Cadet Lt. Tom Everman, Sgt. Albert Simpson, Sgt. Herbert Pasch, Sgt. Frederick Sager, Sgt. Ronald Burgess, St. Donald Sandburg, Sgt. Joe Ringen, Sgt. Carlton Tabor, 2nd Lt. Lyle McGuire, Sgt. Norris Sherman, Cadet Sgt. Tad Wilson, Sgt. Sam Leverett, Sgt. Gordon Durnil, Sgt. Frederick Klein and 2nd Lt. Bill Kattmann.

Activities of the unit were again under the leadership of Sgt. 1/c Leo Chevalier and Sgt. Donald Winter. Battalion commander Lt. Col. Richard Smith was assisted by Adjutant, Capt. Mike McGuire and executive officer Richard Johnson.

Lights! Action! Camera! was the theme of the 1951 vaudeville held on Nov. 29 and 30 in the Manual auditorium. Four main acts and three intermission acts were presented under the direction of Mr. Douglas Conrod.

This movieland theme also was used by Larry Burkhart in his prize-winning poster which was silk-screened for vaudeville publicity. Larry adds finishing touches to the man-sized poster in the top left picture.

Revelers in the tropical sun (top right), Lorine Short, Janice Casteel, Roland Sewell, Mary Roberts, and Freda James were members of the cast of "South Sea Island Magic," vaudeville act sponsored by Jeane and Janice Casteel. Faculty sponsors were Mr. Harold Boese and Mr. Robert Crawford.

Performers in one act were in a daze, a "Hollidaze," to be exact. Those shown (bottom left) are Janice Farley, Dallas McGee, Margaret O'Donnell, Jack Edison, James Schmedel, and Glady Ann Caley. This act was sponsored by Betty Willoughby and Phyllis Baker, students, and Mr. Howard Thrall and Miss Lucille Cassell, faculty sponsors.

The Sleeping Beauty and her Prince Charming came to life in "A Dream Sequence," promoted by Roberta Cain and Reva Combs. Mr. John Patten and Mr. William Glickert were the faculty sponsors.

Judie Pederson and Joy Seiler (top left) played two "red hot mammas" while "Dancing Thru the Years" in the act sponsored by Miss Seiler and Lura Bennett. Teacher sponsors were Miss Helen Negley and Mr. Robert Godsey.

Harold Claiborn (center insert) entertained the audience with his impersonations of famous people, Peter Lorre and "Der Bingle."

As each section of a blueprint represents a part of the architect's conception of an entire structure, so do Manual's music groups show to the public a portion of the educational value of their school.

Musical activities of the year included Choir and Glee Club recordings. The Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Edith R. Binkley, department head, also sang at the Marion County Choral Festival, and Easter music was provided for church services at the Indiana Theater by the Glee Club, which is headed by Miss Freda Hart.

The Orchestra, directed by Miss Roberta Trent, and the Band, under the baton of Mr. E. L. Brittan, participated in the all-city orchestra and band festivals in April. Manualites stepped to the rhythm of the Dance Band at school dances. Mr. William Breedlove directs this group.

Blueprint For

. . . In Sports

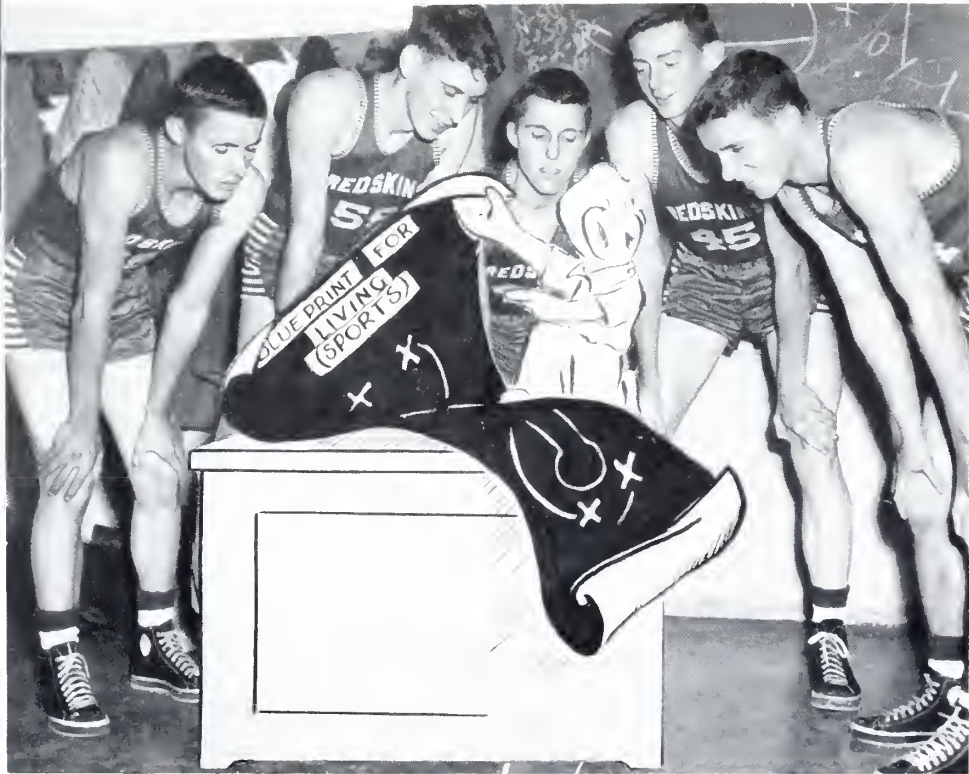

Before the architect builds, he first plans and sketches with the idea in mind that he is building something which will stand for people to see for many years; so it is with students who go out for sports. Besides planning and practicing, they are always impressed with the value of clean, healthful sports and the importance of keeping up a reputation of fair play for Dame Manual. Here Mr. Noah Ellis helps two teammates, Lawrence Dicks and Dick Nyers, map out plays for a coming game. Intelligent planning, cooperation, and sportsmanship might well be a recipe for a winning team; but win or lose, a team is always remembered for the teamwork and sportsmanship of its members.

Living . . .

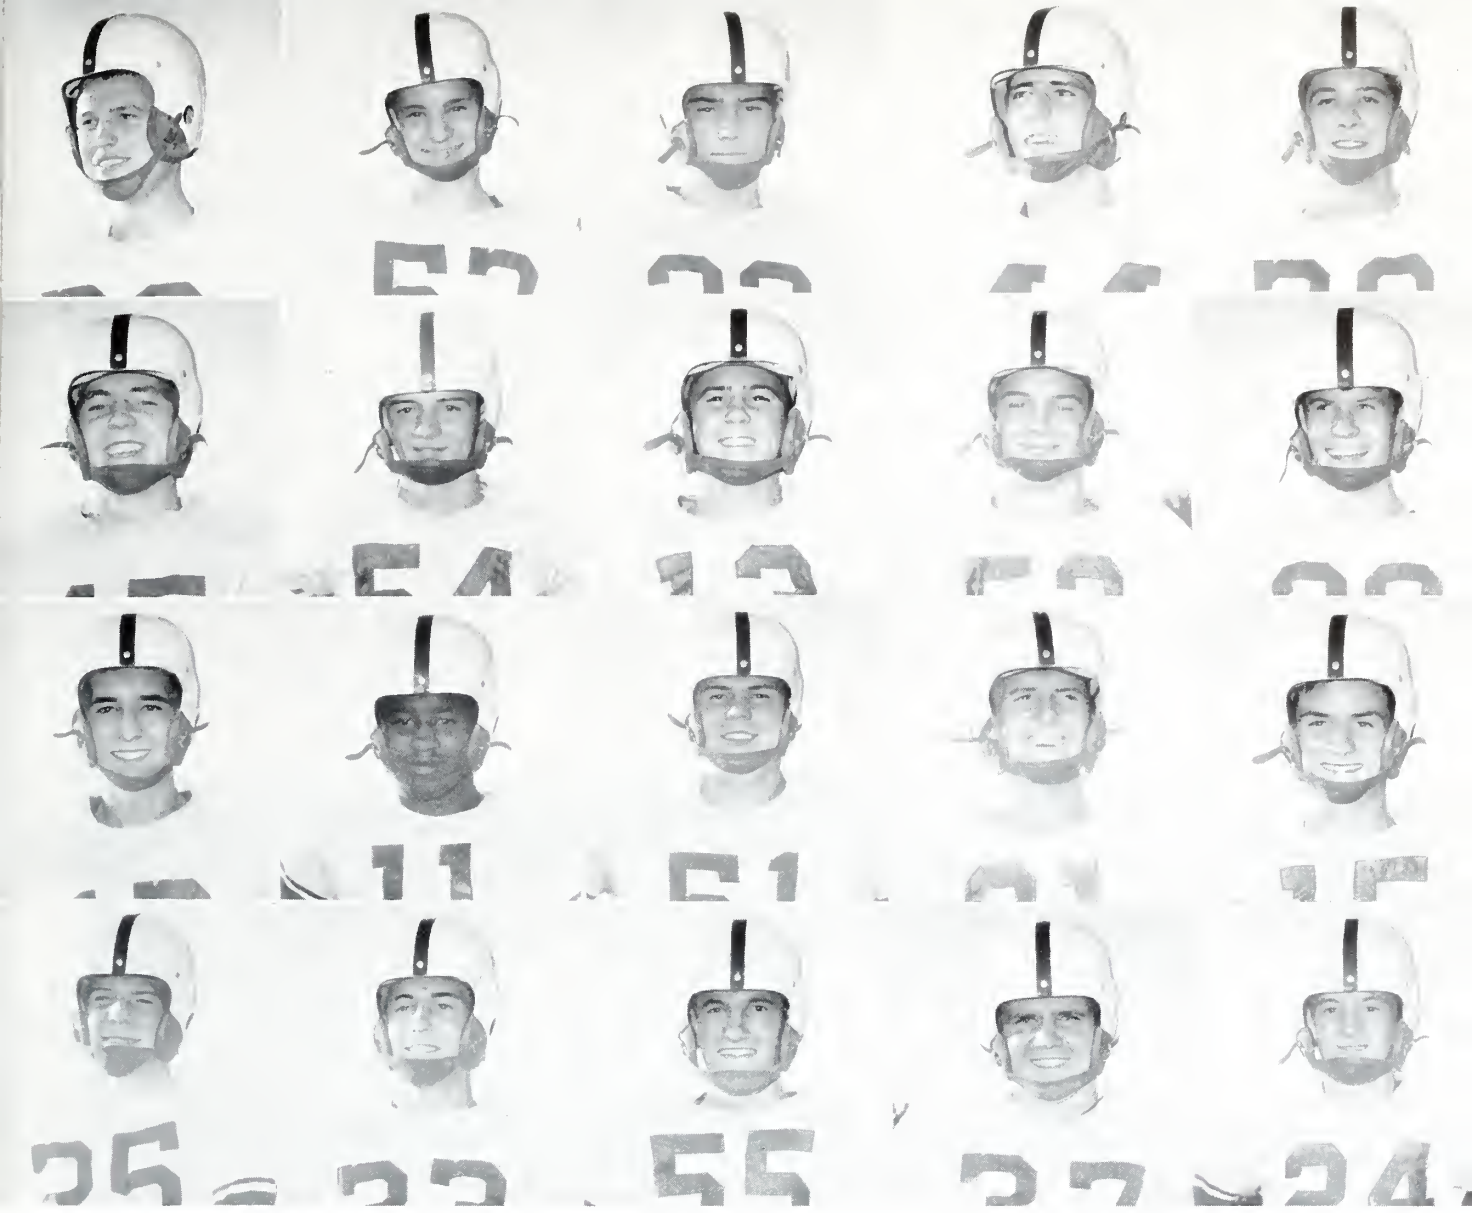

Listening attentively to Art K. Tect as he explains a new offensive play in the game of life are the first five netters, Tom Heacox, Charles Raker, Harry Shaner, Bill Green, and Dick Nyers.

Although Manual's football season didn't have as happy an ending as many Redskins wished, the team proved it had the ambition and will to win. Starting the season by revenging last year's defeat at the hands of Crispus Attucks, the Tribe gained a 19 to 0 victory, the only win of the season. An extra point that was missed cost the Tribesters a tie with Howe.

Again, as in the past, the Manual eleven took to the air to overcome the height and weight of their opponents. This frequently proved successful although the win column of Manual showed only 78 points at the end of the season compared with the opponents' 179.

Manual's B-team wound up the season with a 1 and 3 record. Two games were cancelled. Winning the first game a Manual reserve squad has taken in seven years, the reserves broke the spell by defeating the Washington Continentals, 13 to 6.

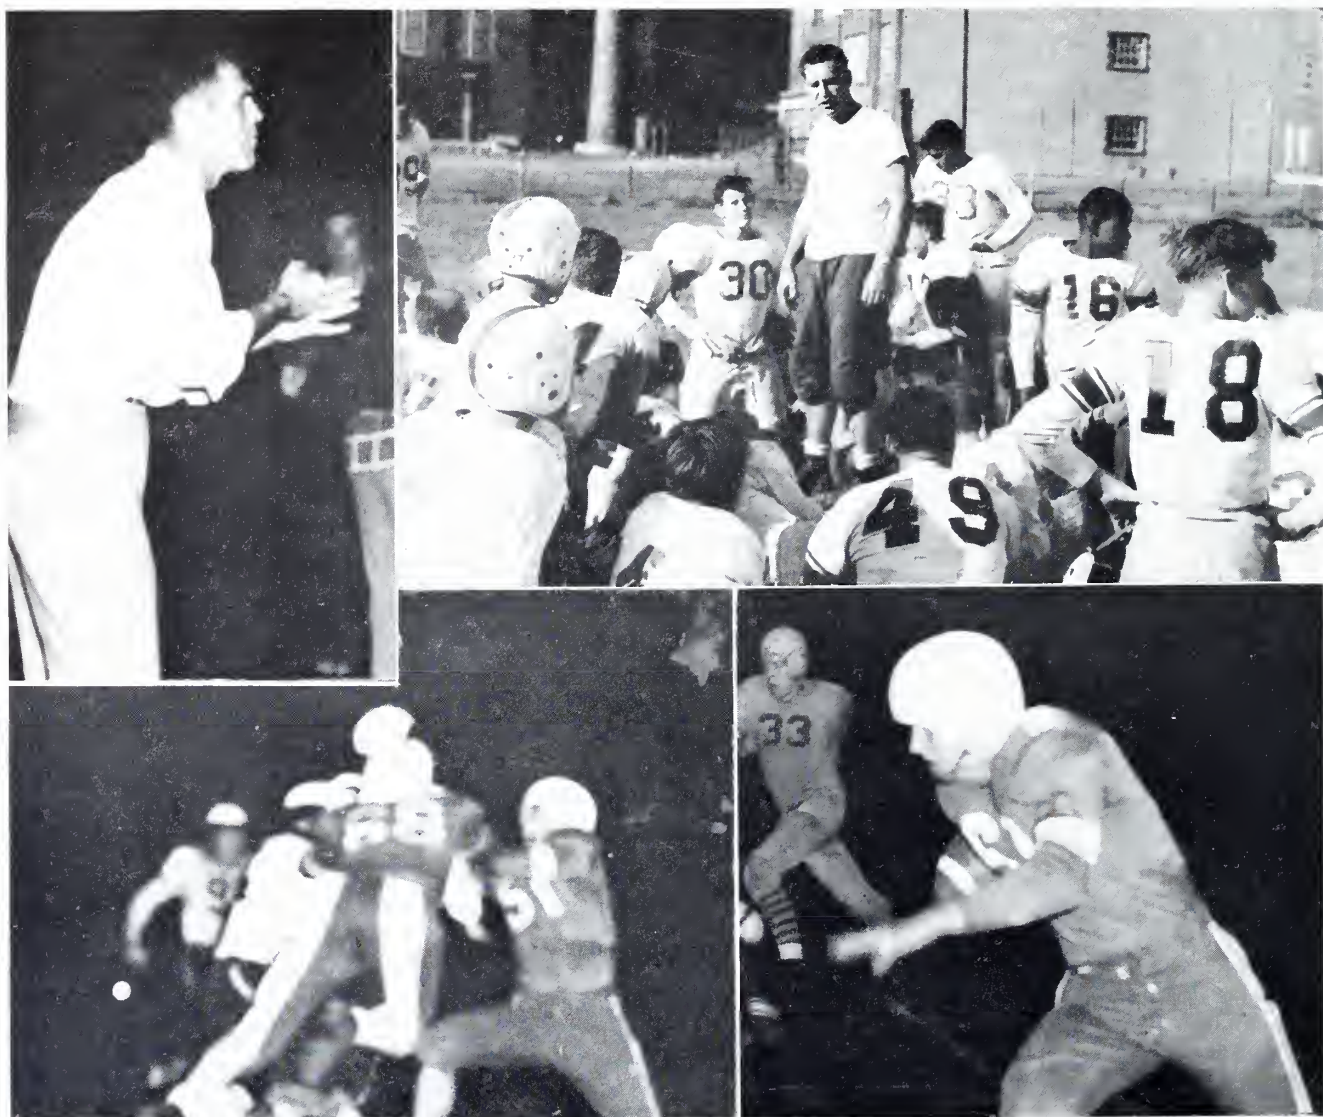

Under the supervision of Coach Walter Floyd, the retiring varsity coach, the freshmen started their season with three losses. The Manual freshmen were more fortunate, however, than their older brothers, the B-team, as they won over the Southport frosh in their next game, 15 to 0. Altogether they finished the season with a record of one win and four losses.

Manual did have one winner this year, and that proved to be the youngest members of the Tribe, the eighth grade team. The junior papooses, winning five for five, were scored on only once during the whole season. At the annual football banquet, Coach Walter Floyd proudly presented the City Championship trophy to Co-Captains Charles Roberts and James Miller.

"No, that's the wrong play," Coach Noab Ellis (top left) seems to be saying to his fighting Injuns . . . "Now, this is the way it's done," explains "Mac" to his reserve team (upper right). Seated around Coach McConnell, the starting lineup for the reserve team gets last minute instructions before beginning its tussle with Washington.

Oh-ob, loose ball! Manual and Waashington players alike pile up (bottom left) trying to get possession of that loose pigskin. Dick Nyers seems to have everything well in hand (bottom right) as he heads for pay dirt in the battle against Howe.

At the annual Athletic Awards Dinner 106 gridmen were honored. Following in his brother's footsteps, Dick Nyers was elected the most valuable player of the year and received the Gilbert Mordoh award.

The third varsity award, a gold football, was given to three boys who had previously won the second award and had participated in 60 per cent of the quarters in the season's regularly scheduled games. These awards were presented to Nyers, Wylie Williams, and Lawrence Dicks. Seventeen players received second and first varsity awards. Honored with six-inch block "M's," 20 Redskin Warriors and two reserve managers received Reserve awards.

Manual's freshman team was honored with the customary three-inch red numerals. For the first time, an eighth grade team was represented at the banquet. Their award consisted of a felt football with the words "City Champions '51" embossed on it and was presented to all 25 of the original team who came out for the sport.

Manual's hardwood gang ended its encounters for another year with a 6-won-13-lost slate. The Redskins started the season on the wrong foot by dropping their first encounter to Cathedral. They didn't seem to let this worry them, though, as they took the next two by sizable margins, beating Lawrence Central and the Deaf School. Then the rims tightened as the Tribe bowed to Warren Central, Sacred Heart, Ben Davis, and Charlottesville.

As the season wore on, Manual had its ups and downs as many spine-tingling games were lost by a narrow margin. Long to be remembered is the brilliant upset over Howe and the rough time Manual handed Tech and Crispus Attucks.

Manual's varsity team did better than the win-loss column shows. Offensively, the Macmen hit 949 points for an average of 49.9 points per game. Manual's opponents hit 979 points for a 51.5 average, showing that Manual lost a lot of close ones.

The reserve netmen, under the coaching of Mr. Raymond Ashley, finished the season by winning 13 of 20 games. Perhaps their greatest victory was their repeat performance against Tech. The Manual B-team won in a double overtime when Phil Willsey hit a long shot, giving the junior netmen a sudden death victory. The reserve squad also captured the four-way tourney by downing Deaf School and Crispus Attucks.

The Manual papooses completed their season with a five and ten record. Jerry Clancy took the scoring honors with 76 points for the season. Coach Howard Thrall is hoping for a better season next year when he will have the help and experience of this year's eighth grade team.

The junior papooses finished their season with a fairly good record, seven wins and four losses. The team was coached by Mr. Noah Ellis until Mr. Don Mason took over as pilot during the second semester. Manual coaches are happy with the good prospects provided by the eighth grade and freshman teams.

Wind-up for the season was the annual honors banquet. One boy who wasn't satisfied with destroying city records but went on to knock down the county record for total points scored during the season was Dick Nyers, who was picked for the Indianapolis Star's all-city team.

Another netter to win distinction was Bill Green, who received the Free Throw Trophy. Nyers and Green both won gold basketballs, the highest varsity award. Charles Raker, Tom Heacox, and Harry Shaner received the second varsity award. Three boys won first varsity awards while 18 received reserve M's. Ten freshmen received '55 numerals as a reward for their efforts.

Playing hide and seek with the ball (top left) is eighth grade netter Jerry Horsley. Ronnie Morris (39) rushes to assist him. Attempting to retrieve a lost ball, B-team members (top right) Paul Harris, Gerald Clancy, and Robert Bruhn pile up.

Capturing three third places and one fourth, Manual's varsity tracksters opened their 1952 season on March 29 with the fifth annual Hoosier Indoor Relays at Bloomington, Ind.

The Redskin cindermen, coached by Mr. Raymond Ashley, scored in their sections of the running events, which comprised four of the five relays events.

As the Ivian went to press, victories were already chalked up against Crispus Attucks and also against Franklin Township and Beech Grove in a three-way meet. Defeats had been handed the track men by Deaf School and Lawrence Central.

Watching a hot one "sizzle" by is Wylie Williams (below), one of last year's men and also a member of the '52 team.

Waiting for a pitch is Jim McQueary (Page 77, top), who also pitched some during the '51 season.

The '51 team met plenty of tough competition and ended the year with a 2-8 record. Although Coach Walter Floyd had only three returning lettermen this year, the diamondmen hoped to better last year's record.

The season was opened April 21 against Crispus Attucks and games with Howe, Washington, Lawrence Central, Broad Ripple, Greenfield, Cathedral, Shortridge, and Tech followed. A highlight of the season was the tourney at Victory Field on May 19, 20, and 21.

Members of the varsity and reserve cheerleading team who led Manual braves and squaws to the rhythm of "Extra, Extra" and "Onward, Manual" at all football and basketball games throughout the year were (top row) Mary Farley, Judi Pedersen, Janice Farley, Jim Schmedel, Joan Crow, Joy Seiler, Joyce Mills; (bottom row) Donna Cain, Sue Payne, Norma Payne, Carol Woodmansee, and Phyllis Baker.

Garbed in a new gray buckskin costume, Joan Crow was again selected as mascot and joined the varsity cheerleaders in several routines.

Learning the fundamentals of teamwork (bottom right), Annie Lex, Thelma Duart, Jean Millay, and Esther Scharfe participate in a game of volleyball.

The weaker sex at Manual is not to be slighted when it comes to sports, for girls have an opportunity to show and improve their skill in intramural sports after school hours.

Manual femmes began the fall intramural season with tennis and archery. Girls' bowling continued all winter, and girl keglers, who decided to share their fun part of the time with male friends, offered them a night for mixed bowling.
